On Shipp's okay

Alcohol allowed on campus

by KAY OWENS

It is now perfectly legal, under certain circumstances, to have alcoholic drinks on campus.

Although the SGA Senate adopted a resolution to allow alcoholic beverages on campus for school sponsored activities in 1973, the agreement has not been exercised until recently, according to Tim Hardy, Student Government Association (SGA) vice president.

Chancellor Donald E. Shipp willingly submitted the resolution to the LSU Board of Supervisors during the spring semester, 1973, and it was immediately adopted, Hardy said. He also stated that any school-sponsored organization may serve alcoholic beverages by receiving written approval from Chancellor Shipp.

Delta Omicron Mu (DOM), campus veterans fraternity, requested to have beer during club functions on campus last year and were denied the right, he added. However the club did not receive any repercussions this semester when they submitted a letter to Dr. Shipp.

Recently, DOM members served beer during a meeting in the Snack Bar, according to club chairman, Bob Anderson.

"We are continuing to have beer at other future functions in the Snack Bar," he said.

According to Shipp, alcoholic beverages are restricted to the Snack Bar upon his final approval.

He also added that he would not commit himself on how many times and for what activities he will allow the possession and consumption of alcohol at LSUS.

The LSUS Student Handbook clearly states the resolution and how to go about receiving approval from Shipp.

Guidelines pertaining to alcoholic beverages read: the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages may be permitted at official events of approved campus organizations.

Each function at which alcoholic beverages will be used must be specifically approved by the Chancellor or his designated representative.

On-campus possession and use of alcoholic beverages will be restricted to approved social events held in the student center.

The possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages at any officially-sponsored social event, on or off campus, must be in accordance with provisions of state laws and city and parish ordinances.

The first step

The first step in the long road to the completion of the proposed LSUS Student Union Building was taken last week. For three days the Gorsha Testing Laboratory Inc. of Alexandria set up what looked like a mini oil rig to test the stabilization of the soil, which must be done for each new building. The site of the new building is at the east end of the mall. (photo: Roger Herring)

Pi Sigma Epsilon starts

'Supercard' discount project

by GEORGE SYLVIE

"Supercard," a special ticket allowing persons to shop at local retailers at a discount, is now available to LSUS students and the general public.

Phi Sigma Epsilon, LSUS' sales and marketing fraternity, is sponsoring the discount program, according to club president Jim Cousins. The purpose of "Supercard" is to raise money for Pi Sigma Epsilon's business scholarship, a yearly award to a student in the school of business. Cousins also said that "Supercard" will help send fraternity members to the national convention.

AMONG THE retailers participating in the program are The Male Shop, Shreveport Refrigeration, Elaine's Fashions, Joel Casuals, Just Pants, Preston's Beef Palace, Bonanza Sirloin Pits, Pizza King, Foley's Barbecue, Fantasia, Pet Boutique, Pro-Am Tennis, House of San Francisco and Merle Norman Cosmetic Studios in Shreve City.

"Supercard" may be purchased from any member of Pi Sigma Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Phi and Delta Delta Delta. Cost is $5 and proceeds will benefit projects of the clubs involved. Cards are valid until Dec. 15.

COUSINS ADDED, "We'd like to make 'Supercard' a regular semester project, but it will depend on how well it works."

Pi Sigma Epsilon, in addition to "Supercard," will host a regional convention for collegiate Pi Sigma Epsilon chapters from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi in November.

The fraternity is also sponsoring a ski trip to Breckenridge, Colorado in December.

3 BA departments activated this fall

by GEORGE SYLVIE

Three departments have been activated this fall by the College of Business Administration, according to Dean Todd Y. Tillman.

Business Administration, Accounting, and Economics and Finance departments have been organized and Tillman said office administration will be departmentalized in the near future.

NAMED AS chairmen were Dr. John Berton, professor of business administration; Dr. Marilyn Winborne, professor of accounting; and Dr. Philip Scherer, assistant professor of economics.

Management, marketing, health care administration, business law and statistics curricula will be directed by the Business Administration Department under Dr. Berton.

Accounting and economics and finance curricula will be administered under Dr. Winborne and Dr. Scherer, respectively.

TILLMAN explained that along with their administrative duties the department chairmen will make the initial selection of new faculty members, select the courses to be offered, help prepare budgets and recommend faculty promotions.

"The organizations have worked very, very well," Tillman said "and the outstanding jobs being done have resulted in much better contacts with students, better planning, less course conflicts and a real fine spirit with the College."

Tillman added that Mary Whatley, instructor in Office Administration, has been aiding the Dean's office in preparing office administration courses and in preliminary work for the future department.

Shreveport — A time to listen

Just as it's easy enough to only look for things that are wrong, it's also just as easy to ignore what may be legitimate criticism.

Shreveport is a perfect example. Last week the results of a survey rating the quality of life in Shreveport substandard created a storm of controversy. "I don't think they know what they're talking about," one public official said, "There are no problems here we can't handle."

There may be justified concern for the methodology used; the survey was done completely objective and the statistics used are five years old.

However, to just deny that Shreveport doesn't have any problems, as it appears some officials did, or disregard suggestions for improvements is certainly closing our eyes to the reality of our city.

No, Shreveport, for the majority of citizens, may not be the worst place to live but it is certainly not perfection either. The survey so many leaders are quick to slight may indeed have legitimate criticism—we need to listen.

Women's studies

by SANDY BELLAR

The results of this week's Almagest survey shows that most students think there is a definite need for womens' studies on this campus.

Sex roles are changing and knowledge in social, psychological and political areas must be available to prepare today's students for a changing world.

Too long has the female been considered as a male possession and the male should be ready to handle the female as an individual. However, women have been thrown into conflict about their role and could use a course in adjustment to their new role in the family.

On this campus, there are two excellent courses offered dealing with adjustment — one is Psychology 305, the other is Marriage and the Family. But, the survey suggests that an advanced adjustment course is needed to answer the more complex problems created by modern society.

ONE STUDENT commented that what is badly needed is a course for men and women dealing with laws centered around divorce, separation and credit. Students are prepared for marriage but not for divorce and its aftermath.

Certainly, the new womens' role has brought change into the family. Men and women can learn ideas in handling children, household chores and financial responsibilities in a cooperative manner.

OTHER universities offer not only a course in womens' studies, but an entire degree. LSU-Baton Rouge lists three courses on the subject. Members of modern society, especially the South were the roles haven't changed much, must learn to live together with the female as an equal individual in order to maintain the family as the basic social unit.

Furthermore, there is a demand for such a course at night. Therefore, the survey shows that students would enroll in a course in womens' studies during the day or at night.

A move on the part of the administration to see that such a course becomes available is justified to meet the demand of the students.

Letters to the Editor

Policy criticized

To the Editor:

Last week around 12 student workers were ordered to be fired by the Chancellor's office because they were not full time students. The administration had no choice in this matter since not only do University regulations forbid the hiring of part-time students but the federal government which funds much of the work-study program also forbids it. My question is this: "If it is illegal for these students to work why were they hired in the first place?"

The regulation against the hiring of part-time students is not new but for some reason administration officials who are responsible for hiring chose to ignore it. Who suffers for this? The administration? Of course not, it is the students who suddenly find themselves unemployed. Why weren't the students told when they were hired that they must take at least 12 hours in order to work?

To their credit, the administration did take steps to allow most of the students to continue working and only a few students actually lost their jobs. I however contend that this episode should have never happened and it wouldn't have if the members of the administration responsible had properly done their jobs and followed University regulations.

Parking

To the Editor:

I would like to propose a solution to the parking problem and traffic congestion here at LSUS.

My solution is designated parking areas, like the faculty parking spaces, for automobiles with two or more occupants. The parking spaces could be incentive for students to form carpools.

By doing this, parking would be easier and the traffic congestion leaving here on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at noon would be decreased.

Election reform

To the Editor:

Your editorial of Friday 19, indicated no election reforms accomplished to date. On the contrary, there were three polls, as promised; permanent security proof ballot boxes, as promised; and an unmarked, up to date roster of students, also as promised.

The recommended procedure of the Student Election Board pertaining to identification was adhered to and the voter count was exact. Further, the needed reforms governing procedures have been drafted and are in the Rules Committee. They are a part of a package of needed Constitutional amendments and will soon be presented to the student body for adoption.

This latter effort is a result of the quick and harmonious cooperation of our new and hardworking Student Government Association (SGA). I consider this action noteworthy because it reflects their determination to serve the needs of the student body and signals a break from the past.

We of the NEW SGA solicit your earnest, constructive criticism at all times. We recognize that in spite of our best efforts, we will continue to be judged in light of what went before.

That unfortunate fact makes our task no easier and tends to erode new found confidence and cooperation. Help us if you will; bury the past as we have done and judge us on our present performance.

Billy G. Lyons
SGA President

Almagest name

To the Editor:

There has been a great deal of controversy lately concerning whether or not Almagest is the appropriate name for the school paper.

Yet many people haven't the slightest idea where the title originally came from or what it means.

The original title was first used by a Greek astronomer, Claudius Ptolemy, who lived around 140 A.D. He wrote a series of 13 volumes on astronomy known as the "Almagest." The name comes from an Arabian conception meaning "The Greatest."

I feel that the present title is appropriate and hope that it remains to be the title of the school paper.

Yearbook pics

To the Editor:

This year the edition of the Bagatelle will be for the 1975-76 school year. Consequently that means the yearbook will come out in the Spring semester of 1976. It also happens to be the year of America's Bicentennial.

Therefore, the editor and staff of the Bagatelle have decided to have a contest for the best bicentennial picture. So that means to enter, your group must wear some sort of 18th century outfit that will look of that period in time.

We are not speaking of you spending a fortune to do so, simply something that from the waist up looks that way, and those who stand in front may want to look that way completely. You also need to find a colonial setting for your formal or informal photograph (meaning that you can be either fancy—aristocratic or common farmer—patriots in dress, or even both).

The pictures for this must be taken by Dec. 5. I hope everyone that can will enter. Because we knew some might not, we are going to choose the three best pictures and give those groups and additional page designating them as first, second and third place winners.

So let's start thinking and may the best group win and all that can, participate.

SGA meetings

To the Editor:

I have been a senator in the Student Government Association (SGA) for over a year and have seen the SGA come under attack for a multitude of reasons. The main complaint against the SGA seems to have been inactivity.

This in part may have been true. However, I wish to shift part of the blame to the student body.

Students input into the SGA is virtually nonexistent. At the Sept. 17 meeting of the SGA three out of the four non-SGA students attending the meeting were ex-senators.

How can the senate efficiently operate with this type of apathy?

I invite all students to all senate meetings. I ask students who have any problem, complaints, or suggestions to come by Bronson Hall, room 124. The SGA needs your help.

'The Game of the Year'

(Editor's note: It was called "the game of the year" and no doubt it was the most popular. In front of a crowd of about 100 spectators, Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Phi flag football teams battled it out. We sent our special correspondent to cover this major event. Here is her report.)

Special to the Almagest

As the two teams faced each other on the field, a crowd gathered, cheerleaders unfurled a huge sign and Channel 3 was there.

It was a far more bitter rivalry than simply the hometown team locking horns with some out-of-state rival. It was Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Phi, both out for blood—each other's.

EXCEPT FOR THE maroon and gold KA shirts and the green Delta Sig shirts, it was difficult to ascertain who was playing whom. "Uniforms" consisted of everything from cutoffs to checkered slacks and socks were in every color imaginable.

At first glance, the Delta Sigs appeared to have most of the crowd support. Cheerleaders from Bossier High Schools wearing the green of the Delta Sigs, unfurled a huge sign proclaiming "All the way, Delta Sigs!" in red, blue and green. Then, somebody illegally taped the huge placard to three of Bronson Hall's columns.

But no one seemed to mind. After all, this was "the game of the year" according to many (mostly KA's and Delta Sigs).

The KA crowd was quieter, but there was no doubt that firm and serious support was there.

IN THE PRE-GAME huddles, fraternity chants echoed across the deserted campus and wafted up into the clear sky as the sun set slowly in the west.

Play commenced, and almost immediately a penalty flag was thrown. Referees John Smith, Kerry Fellows, Preston Friedley and Jim Campbell's whistles were never idle as the two teams fought valiantly for the smooth pigskin.

Story by Patti Kasselmann

DON EDMUNDS, Delta Sigs, made the first interception as the play moved up and down the field. Later, David Adams broke from the struggle and raced for a touchdown. KA's-7, Delta Sigs-0. Thus ended the first half.

The Delta Sigs remained undaunted, as one of them predicted their fraternity would come back to win 14-7. Alas, it wasn't to be. As the final second ticked away, Kappa Alpha had humiliated the Delta Sigs 14-0. "We just didn't have the weight or the power," Tim Hardy, Delta Sigs player, said in a post game interview.

THE "GAME OF the year" had only lasted about an hour, but one referee apparently thought it was long enough. "If we had called every foul and penalty we saw there wouldn't have been any time left to play," he said, declining to be named (for obvious reasons).

David Towns, associate student director of intramurals, pronounced the game a success. He said the game showed "increasing competition" and it indicated there are "a number of people who know about intramurals."

Kappa Alpha had helped spur that knowledge by boldly announcing their game plan in Bronson lobby Wednesday morning—"We Will Win" in large red letters. They were right—this time. But what of next year? The question will have to stand until next season's clash—a rivalry sure to become a classic in the annals of LSUS sports history.

Security officer throws voice

by JACKYE MOORE
Special to the Almagest

A campus security officer sits down, puts a couple of dolls on his lap and starts talking to himself.

No, he hasn't flipped. Officer C. R. Nunley is just enjoying his hobby, ventriloquism.

NUNLEY taught himself this art after first becoming interested in it when his grade school class was visited by a ventriloquist.

He used his hobby while on a police force, taking his dolls on visits to schools to do safety education talks.

NUNLEY uses two professional dolls handmade especially for him in Denver, Colo. The dolls are quite an investment, priced between $300 and $400 each.

His two puppets are Rusty, a boy doll he has used for three years, and Dusty, a girl doll he has used for two years. Both dolls' hands and heads are made from wood and the rest of their bodies from plastic and cloth. They weight between 10 and 12 pounds each.

RUSTY HAS the typical doll's face with the cracks in his jaw but Dusty has a synthetic material on her face, making her jaws smooth. She looks almost like a real little girl sitting on her daddy's lap.

Nunley says he is involved with ventriloquism on two fronts, "in Sunday school, church work, child crusades. Also I'm teaching it."

THREE other qualities besides those that are taught are basic to success, Nunley believes. Determination is necessary to sharpen the skills; concentration must be high during all practices and performances; and most importantly, many hours must be spent practicing before the student is proficient.

If a student uses these three qualities, Nunley can have him performing in six weeks.

NUNLEY now teaches his method to six students and will be starting a new class within the month, with between eight and ten members. He would like to start a class at LSUS if enough interest is shown.

People who see C. R. Nunley work with Rusty and Dusty, whether its in a classroom or at a performance, are in for a treat, because the three are a charming trio.

Unbeaten duo

Greenways meet Trees

by MIKE LINDENMAYER
Special to the Almagest

With the season more than half over the stage is set for the showdown of the undefeated in flag football.

The game (which will be held too late for press coverage this week) will be between the only two teams with perfect records, the Trees and the Greenway Gang, both 4-0.

Both teams boast one shut-out each. Offensively the Greenway Gang has averaged 20 points a game and the Trees slightly less than 15 a game.

Both teams are quick and strong which should produce an even matchup and a great game. The team making the fewest mistakes will probably come out the winner.

Wrapping up Sept. 17 results, in the big game Kappa Alpha dealt Delta Sigma Phi its fourth straight loss, 14-0, in spite of the Bossier High School cheerleaders.

The Greenway Gang beat the Soul Patrol, 21-12. Trees stopped B.S., 25-0. And in a fierce battle the Who dropped out of the game giving the S.O.B.'s an upset forfeit victory.

Parking tickets

Student parking practices are still a problem at LSUS, according to Dr. Jimmie Smith, vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

Students with no decals are getting ticketed because the limit of two weeks has passed and many still have not picked up their parking stickers.

Students without decals are charged $1 if paid within 24 hours and $2 if paid later.

Another parking problem is students parking at incorrect angles, taking up two slots instead of one. This causes problems for other students in finding parking as well as being a violation, for which students can get tickets.

Brain teaser

The Linear Transformations will have a brainstorming session Bronson 405 noon Oct. 1 and 2. Anyone interested in mathematics is welcome.

This week's brainteaser: Smith, Jones and Robinson are the brakeman, fireman and engineer of a train, not necessarily respectively. Today only three passengers are riding this train and by an extraordinary coincidence, their last names are the same as the last names of the brakeman, fireman and engineer.

To distinguish the passengers from the trainmen, let us refer to the passengers with the title Mr. — Mr. Smith, Mr. Jones and Mr. Robinson. Here is some more relevant information:

Mr. Robinson lives in Detroit.

The brakeman lives halfway between Chicago and Detroit.

The passenger who lives in Chicago has the same name as the brakeman.

The brakeman's next-door neighbor, one of the passengers, earns exactly three times as much as the brakeman.

Mr. Jones earns exactly $2000 a year (and collects a lot of food stamps and welfare payments).

Smith beat the fireman at billiards.

Question: Who is the engineer?

Bring your answer to the Math Department.
